Healing the Generations:

First Annual Family Violence and Child Trauma Conference

Co-sponsored by the Mashantucket Pequot Tribal Nation and Clifford W. Beers Guidance Clinic

"Toxic Stress," "Adverse Childhood Experience," "PTSD" . . . no matter what you call it, the bad things that happen to our Connecticut children can cause health problems, interfere with school and affect the quality of their lives. We know the effects of trauma are passed from generation to generation. The time to do something is now. Please join us for a two day conference designed to investigate the effects of trauma on children and families.

Hear experts in the field of child traumatic stress present on some of the following topics:

- The Neurobiology of Trauma
- Helping Parents Who are Trauma Survivors
- Cutting Edge Evidence Trauma Based Practices and Implementation Strategies
- Obesity and Trauma in Children
- Working with Traumatized Children with Problem Sexual Behaviors
- Child Development and Community Policing
- Collaborative Approaches to Domestic Violence
- Many More . . .

Keynote Presentations by:

Vincent Felitti, MD, Co-principal Investigator of the Adverse Childhood Experience Study and Dee Subia Big Foot, Director of the Indian Country Child Trauma Center at the University of Oklahoma.
